4. COMPLETE THE TEXT WITH GERUND OR INFINITIVE FORM OF THE VERBS IN BRACKETS OR SO, SUCH, TOO OR ENOUGH.

A new instrument that has been developed (1)  (measure) the ocean's temperature is turning surfers into "scientists". (2)  (keep) track of the ocean's temperature is very important for scientists because these temperatures control the ocean currents. Currents carry pollutants, which cause damage to sea plants and animals. This is (3)  a serious problem that scientists have been looking for additional ways (4)  (anticipate) changes in the ocean currents. Scientists from the United Kingdom ran a year-long study where volunteer surfers used special equipment every time they went out (5)  (surf). Each surfer wore a GPS instrument around his or her waist to record the location of the surfboard. A temperature sensor was attached to the leash or cord connecting the surfer to the board.

Scientists compared the data from the surfers against satellite information from a scientific station in the area. The results were (6)  close that the scientists were convinced of the reliability of (7)  (use) the surfing method. However, surfers go out to sea (8)  few hours a week because they need certain sea conditions. The scientists say that they can solve the problem because there are (9)  aquatic recreation groups like swimmers, fishermen and boaters who can also take part.
